

Announcement of appointment of CEO to SIV

SIV introduces Steven Wojtkiw

Steven Wojtkiw was appointed Chief Executive Officer of SIV in January 2022.

Prior to joining SIV, Steven held senior managerial roles with the Victorian Chamber of Commerce and Industry and Australian Industry Group. Steven brings extensive experience in policy and advocacy and general business management to SIV.

He has secured several major reforms benefiting Victorian industry over his career, including reductions in payroll tax, cuts to business red tape, the progression of major infrastructure projects and reforms to education and training to ensure the changing skills and workforce needs of employers are met.

Steven holds a Bachelor of Economics and Politics degree from Monash University and is passionate about growing the competitive position of industry, their workforces, and communities.

“My focus is squarely on growing the successful operations of SIV as the peak membership body of Victoria’s diverse, vibrant and economically important seafood industry.

I look forward to working closely with members, the industry supply chain, regulators and political decision makers at state and federal levels to support the commercial success of seafood businesses, growing jobs, trade and investment across the sector”.
